

How to Start a Food business in India

Food Market Opportunities in India

There are several opportunities for this sector. India is a crucial exporter of spices and other horticultural products. India is the second-most populous country. This means an enormous market for the industry. Food is essential, and everyone in this vast population needs it. In 2018, this industry had a CAGR of 9 per cent. As a result, it is incredible how Indians changed their eating habits and routines, especially for millennia.

Quick-Service Restaurants (QSR) have become an essential component of our diet. Seeing how the market is stable is starting a profitable, low-cost business in India.

Know more visit: <https://bit.ly/3Px7PdR>

Understanding the food business in india

Every enterprise that manufactures, imports, processes, packages, stores, distributes or sells edibles in India is a food industry. These industries offer the following services to the public:

- Catering and dining services.
- Bake house and café.
- Sweetshops and Truck for Food.
- Delivery services.
- Household occupation, etc.

Today, like all other businesses, this industry has also become online. This technology typically involves home delivery of grocery products, online delivery aggregators, online sellers, etc.

Requirements to set up a food business in India

Before starting the business, it is important to keep the following documentation readily available.

1. FSSAI License
2. Certification of shop establishment.
3. Site map and development.
4. GST certificate
5. Fire Protection (NOC) Certificate.
6. Certificate of Health NOC

n India