Health Benefits of Intermittent and Periodic Energy Restriction

Recent years have seen a surge in popularity of intermittent and periodic energy restriction for weight management and other aspects of health. The aim of this conference is to critically appraise the state-of-the-art and future directions of the science and clinical practice of intermittent and periodic energy restriction for health promotion.

Why Sponsor this meeting?

World Obesity Federation engages a wide network of healthcare professionals, researchers and basic scientists and policy makers that are always looking to expand their knowledge of the latest obesity research, practice and guidelines. Don't miss out on this prized opportunity to engage with a wide range of researchers and healthcare practitioners to showcase your products in an educational and focused setting, whilst supporting their obesity learning.

Who will attend?

This meeting will be of interest to researchers, specialists with a focus on energy restriction, but also to clinicians, psychologists, junior researchers and basic scientists involved in the field of dietary management. It will provide the perfect opportunity to develop diverse social and business collaborations.

Scientific Programme

Topics will include:

- / Time restricted feeding and alternate day feeding in mice and humans
- / Periodic Fasting in Humans
- / Clinical trials of intermittent and periodic energy restriction
- / What can we recommend in clinical practice now?

The programme is SCOPE and CPD accredited*
