

To whom it may concern

Amuradia Association was established in 2011 and its main objective is to guide people with cancer and their carers throughout the difficult cancer journey. Based on my personal experience, I have learned the importance of the second opinion. The geographical, financial and language barriers I have faced during this process made me realized the importance of their elimination. The rare cancers patients often need a second opinion due to the disease complexity and personalized treatment scheme. Therefore I fully support the Trusteddoctor.com project in helping patients to having access to a trusted, more easy opinion.
