Why choose this program?

- After completing this program, you will be able to orient yourself in more complicated negotiation processes and procedures.
- You will test your negotiation success and learn how to respond in challenging and specific situations.
- You will learn techniques that increase the likelihood of reaching a more favorable agreement. You will know how to prepare a negotiation plan – goals and negotiation techniques for the beginning, main part, and finalization of the negotiations.

Who is it for?

- All project managers, team leaders, professionals, or executives who want to expand their knowledge and skills in dealing with partners.
- This program follows on Persuasion – Arguing – Negotiation I. and its completion is a prerequisite.
- Recommended for all levels of IPMA® a PMI® certification and re-certification.

Topics

- Situations, strategies and tactics to reach a mutually acceptable agreement.
- Working with emotions and how to use them for own benefit and defense mechanisms against opponent's misuse.
- Negotiation process stages step by step and their careful preparation.
- Negotiation in indirect management situations and in relationships.
- Gambits and defense against manipulation and coercion.
- Flexible attitudes in dealing with various partners.

Methods and techniques

- Programs are based on personal experience of various situations and techniques, working with one's own attitudes on an ongoing feedback.
- We combine a lecture with a guided discussion, brainstorming and interactive workshops.
- Individual and group solutions to case situations simulating real situations are directly related to the discussed topic – based on real experience of the participants, allowing you to experience specific application.
- Learning on one's own experience is one of the most effective training methods – especially if it is linked to video analysis and feedback. Strengthening skills, deepening self-reflection and setting development goals are enhanced by working with a sparring partner or a lecturer.
- Participants share their own practical methods from their field of expertise, complement each other with their own experience; a lecturer summarizes and elaborates.
- Structured learning materials, exercises, case studies, worksheets, tests and recommended literature for self-study. We use methodical movies and their analysis.
- An interesting technique used in the program is the "theater in management" – a phase designed case study with inputs and modification of the development by the participants.
